An excellent giftbook for a loved oneBy Midwest Book ReviewTreasures Found In Passing: Inspiration For Life's Golden Years by retired United Methodist Minister the Reverend Dr. Leonard Mann is an engaging memoir composed of vignettes drawn from the long and varied life in service. Introspection on the nature of aging and meditative contemplations of middle age and beyond are the hallmark of this highly philosophical book. Treasures Found In Passing is rewarding, inspiring reading filled with unique insights, and would make an excellent giftbook for a loved one, friend or family member.

The process of aging brings with it a variety of opportunities and challenges. The retirement years are a time for looking backwards on a life filled with responsibilities, loves and losses, pain and blessing. But these years are also filled with new changes and challenges. In Treasures Found in Passing, octogenarian Leonard Mann provides affirmation, inspiration, and encouragement for this part of the journey. Written in a gentle, conversational tone, Mann's musings provide comfort and care for heart and soul. Morehouse Publishing.
