Pham Cao Duong : Vietnamese Peasants Under French Domination, 1861-1945, Monograph Series No. 24 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Vietnamese Peasants

Under French Domination, 1861-1945, Monograph Series No. 24:

One of the few detailed studies by a Vietnamese author of the conditions of Vietnamese peasants under French rule, this volume explores the conditions that governed the peasant's economic, social and intellectual life. Co-published with the Center for South and Southeast Asia Studies, University of California, Berkeley.

This excellent work, very well documented, should be read by all historians of Southeast Asia. (Pierre-Bernard Lafont) Few books on Vietnam have stood the test of time as well as Pham Cao Duong's classic study of the Vietnamese peasantry under colonialism. With this excellent translation, Professor Duong's seminal study is now accessible to all scholars interested in Vietnam. ^RRRR...vivid, sensitive, and fascinatingly informative...an absolutely indispensable reference work to which all students of Vietnamese history have been, and are, indebted.
